

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a media player includes a processing unit, a reading unit, a converting unit and a transmitting unit. Digital audio data from external storage media is read by said reading unit, converted through digital/analog/RF conversion by the converting unit under the control of the processing unit, and then emitted by the emitting unit. The transmitted audio data may be received and played by a RF receiving device such as radio set.